THIS IS UNEVALUATED INFORMATION

1. [redacted] visited Dobrich in March 1952 and, from a nearby road, saw 10 twin-engine army planes on Dobrich airfield. The field had a cement runway approximately 60 meters wide and one-and-one-half to two kilometers long. Seven or eight wooden barracks and an unknown number of hangars were also located at the Dobrich airfield which was rumored to be the largest airfield in Bulgaria.¹
2. [redacted] villagers in the Dupnitsa area state that trudovaks began repairing a German-built airstrip near Dupnitsa in early March 1952.
